The transmitter provides four frequencies to accommodate v arying factors such as distance, cable type, or soil conditions. If desired, all four frequencies may be transmitted at once. The T ransmitter also provides a separate T one function for identifying cables and pairs. The Recei ver provides four locating modes to accomplish fast or diff icult tracing and to pinpoint or verify a conductor. The Recei ver detects 50 or 60 Hz AC Po wer signals and low fr equency LF radio signals reradiated from local broadcast transmitters. It also measures the signal current in a conductor and displays its magnitude. The depth of b uried cables or sondes may also be displa yed. RECEIVER BATTERY TEST Battery Test Indicator Battery Level Mark The Receiver batteries are tested for two seconds every time the unit is turned on. The time interval can be extended by pressing and holding.

During the battery test, the bar graph should extend to the right of the battery level mark, otherwise replace the batteries. Note When batteries are low, the battery test indicator will flash.
Page 3 Note The battery test indicates battery condition for normal output levels.
Page 4 USING EXTERNAL DC POWER AND 5 WATT OUTPUT The Transmitter can be operated from an external 12VDC source as well as its internal batteries. Use the supplied cigarette lighter adapter cable to connect the DC power from a vehicle's battery source to the Transmitter's external power jack located next to the output jack. Note The internal batteries will not be recharged with external DC.
5 Watt Output An external DC source is required for 5 watt output. To select 5 watt operation, press once for high output 3W and again for 5 watt operation. The High Output flag will turn on for 3W and flash for 5W. Perform a battery test and then connect the Transmitter using one of the three methods below to put tracing signal on a cable.
Page 5 Danger! Voltage higher than 240 volts will damage equipment and cause personal injury and death. Make all direct test connections before turning on the Transmitter. Then activate the Transmitter in the Ohms mode and check the display for voltage readings. Follow standard procedures for reducing the voltage.
Warning! Potential for electrical shock exists when handling connecting cables while the Transmitter is in the TRACE, FAULT or TONE modes. Turn the transmitter off before handling connecting cables. Plug the Direct Connect Cable into the front panel jack. Connect the Black clip to the ground rod. Place the ground rod in the earth perpendicular to the suspected cable path. If necessary, extend the black lead with the Ground Extension Cable. Next, remove the ground bonding and attach the Red clip to the shield.
